Opportunity to Show Appreciation

The organization in every small community, which above all others should have the moral and financial support of the residents, is the Fire Department. Without the help of this branch of the civic organization we are helpless when danger threatens.

On Saturday evening of this week we shall all have an opportunity to help create a maintenance fund for the Carmel Fire Department.

The first annual ball will be given. As many who can should attend. If unable to do so, buy a ticket anyway, to help and encourage the work.

Plays That Will Make Carmel Famous

It is pleasing news indeed that the author of "Yolanda of Cyprus," Cale Young Rice, is to be in Carmel to witness the performance of his play. A telegram conveying this information was received by the Pine Cone last Saturday.

Plans are afoot to show the distinguished visitor many social attentions. And it is of further interest to learn that with Mr. Rice comes Alice Hagen, author of "The Cabbage Patch."

Another week of strenuous rehearsal and much progress. The spirit of the characters to be enacted is taking possession of the players. The introduction of the sweet notes of the flute in the rehearsals of "The Piper" has helped wonderfully to relieve the drudgery of the work, and to create the proper atmosphere.

That no mistake was made in selecting "Yolanda of Cyprus" for one of this year's productions is evidenced by the enthusiastic manner in which the members of the cast speak of it. It is a play of absorbing interest, tense situations and big climaxes, and the lines are beautiful.

Many will regret that Miss Wilkes will be unable to assume the character of Veronica in "The Piper." It is fortunate, however, that Miss Alice MacDougal has consented to play the part.

Jean Webster

Not only in the United States, but throughout the English speaking world, the death of Jean Webster, author of Daddy Long-Legs and other stories, will be mourned. She had a distinction which others may emulate, but none can imitate; unlimited common sense, an exquisite sense of humor and a magnetic charm difficult to define. Those who have read her works will mourn the passing of one of those spirits who come to cheer mankind and lighten its daily cares.

Let's Send Him To Congress

"If you want anything, the way to get it is to go after it." This axiom applies to matters of business, social aspirations, and political ambitions.

George S. Walker of San Jose desires to represent this district in Congress, and he is out after the primary nomination strong. He plans not only to visit the populous centers, where the vote is large, but every out-of-the-way section of the district.

Mr. Walker spent last Saturday morning in Carmel in meeting the citizens and in telling them something of his present work as Building and Loan Commissioner and of his doings in the state Legislature. He proposes to make a clean, straightforward effort to obtain the nomination for Congress, and in supporting him at the polls on August 29, our citizens can do so with the assurance that he will be the right man in the right place.

A Splendid Recital

Many of those in Carmel who make a practice of attending only what they are pleased to term the "best things" in the way of entertainments assuredly missed something last Friday evening.

The dramatic recital given by Walter B. O'Connell at Arts and Crafts Hall, considering the high quality of the offering, should have been heard by five times the number which was present.

Enthusiasm, however, made up for lack of numbers.

One of the charms of Mr. O'Connell's readings is his rendition from memory. Long and difficult selections from Browning and others were given with spontaneity and sincerity, each character distinctly revealed.

The program was well balanced and throughout demonstrated the work of a master artist.

Moore, Carlton, Longfellow, and others were given, thus rounding out a most enjoyable evening.

Two additional recitals are being arranged for by Mr. O'Connell, the first on July 10th, and "An Evening with Mathew Arnold" on August 3rd. It is hoped he will be greeted by capacity houses.

Very Interesting Book by Local Authors

Grace Sartwell Mason and John Northern Hilliard, our neighbors on the Eighty-acre tract, have collaborated in writing "The Golden Hope," a novel of California life, which catches enough of the atmosphere of "the Far West" to be thoroughly enjoyable to lovers of this part of the world. Although the time of the story is nowhere definitely stated, it sounds like California of twenty-five years ago. Its people are pocket hunters in the mountains bordering Death Valley, politicians, land grabbers, and irrigation promoters who have their own various designs on the vast areas of reclaimable land that hold greater fortunes than the problematic ones of the hills—and all the riffraff that drifted out of nowhere into the frontier towns in those days.

The main characters are Erich Wheat and Kate Mariner and her husband, a young couple who have led a nomadic life during the years elapsing between Murphy's defalcation while cashier of a Vermont bank until Kate refuses to skulk any longer and forces him to take her to Tres Pinos, where she means to settle down and try to make a man of the weakling she finally sees her husband to be.

The gambler's chance of finding the gold for which he has been looking lures Mariner from the deadly dullness of routine work, and he persuades Wheat (the most successful man in the town) to grubstake him for a last try. He leaves without telling Kate his plans, and she is thrown upon her own resources. She becomes Wheat's stenographer, and they fall deeply in love. The novel is too full of interest to spoil for the reader by outlining the ending, but it is to be recommended for the success with which its authors have combined the heart publications with big public enterprises whose projectors weave and interweave a web of plot and intrigue about them.

With the exception of the "Major," the proprietor of the hotel in Tres Pinos, who proves loyal to Kate, when she most needs a friend, the characters are the somewhat conventional types of Western romance, but they are by no means unconvincing, and one likes them well enough to feel an unforced interest in the outcome of the tale. "The Golden Hope" is a clean, wholesome Western romance that will delight many readers. Price $1.35 net.

Prudence is the virtue of those who command, not of those who obey.

THE ELEPHANT

The return of a presidential campaign has incited much curiosity as to the origin of the elephant as the emblem of the Republican party, an origin which has been forgotten by most of the present generation.

The elephant was first used to signify the Republican party by Thomas Nast, the famous cartoonist, in November, 1874. In a cartoon labeled "An ass, having put on the lion's skin, roamed about in the forest and the foolish animals he met with in his wanderings."

The "ass" referred to was a New York newspaper, while the Democracy was represented as a fox, lurking in the underbrush and contemplating, with apparent pleasure, the foreshadowed plunge of the elephant into an abyss entitled "Southern Claims Chaos." Various other newspapers were represented by animals, all, with the exception of the fox, in apparent panic. Nast is dead and gone, but his elephant so appealed to the popular imagination that it will probably endure as long as the Republican party as its popular, if not official, emblem.

A PROTEST

The civil enrollment committee of San Francisco for the military training camp comments on the fact that while Pasadena has already furnished 89 recruits for the camp, Monterey has only two enrolled, Pacific Grove three and Carmel none. The committee should bear in mind that the ratio of enrollment here is fully as great in proportion to the population as that of Pasadena, and also that the Peninsula, in a general way, is the host in this matter and not the guest. We will have our hands quite full looking out for the entertainment of some two or three thousand visitors in that camp alone in addition to our regular quota of other guests.

The committee must also bear in mind that if the training camp was held in Pasadena instead of on the Monterey Peninsula there would be more enrollments from here and less from Pasadena, for that's the way of things.

Matches

Be sure your match is out before throwing it on the ground. Break it in two.

Tobacco

Throw pipe ashes and cigarette and cigar stumps in the dust of the road, and stamp out the fire. Do not throw them into needles, leaves or brush.

Making Camp

Make a small camp fire. Build it in the open — not against a tree or log or near brush. Scrape away anything burnable near it.

Leaving Camp

Never leave a camp fire alone, even for a brief time, without pouring water upon it and then covering it with earth. See 1914 hunting license.

Bonfires

Do not make bonfires when it is windy, or when or where there is the least danger of getting beyond control. Avoid making a larger fire than necessary.

Fighting Fire

If you discover a fire, endeavor to put it out. If you cannot, get word of it to the nearest federal or state fire warden quickly.

Information

Keep in touch with the rangers. Ascertain the number of the district in which you are camping from United States forest rangers, county clerks or newspaper offices. Make a note of it on a card or memorandum book.

Boys Having a Good Time in Camp

The Columbia Park boys are now thoroughly at home in their forest camp. The routine work is proceeding smoothly and the boys find plenty of time for sports of all kinds.

Old Glory now waves proudly from a 75-foot pole erected last Wednesday, and the patriotic spirit of the entire command is thusly satisfied.

Many residents and town visitors have been calling at the camp daily, and the entire community is looking forward to the first formal entertainment to be given.

This is the first camp for many of the boys.

A recent arrival in camp is Mr. Henry Raphael, President of the "State of Columbia" camps of 1909 and 1911. He will remain a couple of weeks.

The first party game of baseball was played on Friday between the Optimus and the Maximus, and the latter were victorious by an 11 to 7 score. Battery for Maximus, Schomacker and D. Wilson; for Optimus, Cohen and Brandou.
